

Hoelscher Wasserbau is an independent family-run enterprise that provides a comprehensive range of services for dewatering, well drilling and environmental engineering.

Founded by Heinrich Hoelscher in 1959, the company has progressively grown in size and stature maintaining its founders "down to earth" values, successfully concentrating on developing its dewatering, well drilling and environmental engineering expertise to become a class leader.

We are a reputable people-focused company with a positive family ethos established and nurtured across all areas of the business. We empower our team of more than 400 employees to be innovative with developing economic and safe solutions that are delivered by our specialist teams. We are your ideal partner for the consultation, design and execution of projects.

We typically carry out more than 800 projects per year, which are supported by an extensive infrastructure of plant, equipment and human resources. Our continuing success is achieved by us listening to our clients' feedback, which motivates us to develop our range of services accordingly.
